Introduction

The information on staff has been gained from the Newsletters and Madras College Magazines in the school archive. Further information has come from school prospectuses with staff lists, press articles and the internet. The archive does not have copies of these documents covering all years. In some cases individual undocumented information has been provided personally by former pupils and teachers.

The early Madras College from 1833 was divided into four schools:

- The Primary School for lower grade children;
- The Upper School for boys;
- A small Higher School for girls;
- The Private School for girls of a 'better social position'

Each school department had its own headmaster. There was no overall rector or headmaster of the school. Each headmaster employed assistant teachers or monitors as they saw fit. Parents paid for each class their child attended and a ticket was issued for that purpose.

The school at this time was the classrooms leading off the quadrangle and the Kindergarten Building. There were two Madras Houses, one each side of the entrances to the school. These provided boarding accommodation and residences for some of the headmasters.

The classrooms on the south side of the quadrangle were divided into two, the East room for fee paying pupils and the larger West room for poor pupils. The two-storey rooms on the north side of the quadrangle were used for private classes. There was strict separation of boys and girls and at the rear of the school a wall kept them in separate areas used for play and games.

Things changed when John MacKenzie was appointed Headmaster of Madras in 1889 as part of remodelling the school. He was in overall charge of the school and many of the headmasters left at this time, being replaced with appointees of Mr MacKenzie's choosing.

Further change came into effect in 1928 when the school was transferred to Fife Education Authority. It had taken eight years of negotiations between the governors and the authority before a compromise was reached. In the end it was financial necessity to provide greater accommodation and modern equipment that was the driving force for change.

The next change was the introduction of comprehensive education which took place in the 1960s. This began with the Burgh School being remodelled as Madras Junior High School around 1963. Four years later it left the Abbey Walk building to move into the new school at Kilrymont in 1967. The Junior and Senior secondary's continued in the two separate buildings for the next 50 years and more with staff increasingly travelling between them.

The final chapter in the development of Madras College happened in August 2021 when the new single site at Langlands was occupied by the whole school. This had taken ten years of discussions and arguments over suitable sites and was only solved by legal rulings and an excambion with the University.

For some members of staff there are pages with more information available on the Madras College Archive website. This is indicated in their source list.

There are some members of staff who are known to have been at the school but their job description is unavailable

In a number of cases there is no information on when they actually started at the school or when they left. In most of these cases a year can be given for when they were known to have been at the school.

Dates

Single date	1999	There is a reference for this year for this person
Approximate date	c.1999	Estimated date for event
Start date	1999 -	Known date for start, finish date not known

Dates unknown	? - ?	No start or finish date known

Student teachers

In the early days it was possible for students at the university to take on teaching duties and this continued until the days of Dr Thompson. This might have been on a regular basis or as a temporary measure. Regulations changed and teachers were required to have appropriate qualifications and be registered with the General Teaching Council. The only exception to this was for students in training attending a recognised training college. Once qualified teachers might serve a single probational year as a probationer or a student inductee but there was no guarantee that this would be continued as a permanent post.

Surname order

Mac and Mc are ordered together at the start of surnames starting with the letter M and other surnames beginning with the letter M ordered afterwards.

Where there has been a surname change the main listing is presented with the most recent name having a reference placed for the former surname.

Promoted posts in Madras

1833 - 1889	Each Subject in the charge of a Headmaster Assistants employed by the Headmaster Monitors used to teach pupils
1889 - 1928	Rector in overall charge of the school Teachers in charge of subject areas under the direction of the Rector
1928 - 1963	Separate schools, Burgh School & Madras College controlled by Fife Education Authority. Subjects in schools organized by a Principal Teacher, Assistant Teachers and in some cases Special Assistant Teachers for larger departments.
1963 - 2004	The Burgh School became a Junior High School and amalgamated with Madras College. Principal Teachers in the Burgh School now teaching in the Junior High School became Depute Principal Teachers at 60% of the promoted element of the salary of a Principal Teacher. The Burgh School Headteacher became Depute Rector of the Junior High School. As time went on these posts were phased out and replaced by Assistant Principal Teachers who received 50% of the promoted element of the Principal Teacher's salary. Teachers could also qualify as Senior Teachers or as Chartered Teachers, retaining the normal class contact. The Rector was supported by a number of Assistant Rectors who also taught their specialist subject.
2004 -	A major change in promoted posts was phased in where a number of subjects were brought together under a Curriculum Leader. Some, but not all, of those subjects may still have a Principal Teacher. All Assistant Rectors became Depute Rectors.

Primary Education

Madras College took Primary pupils from the start in 1833 and included pupils attending the West and East Infant Schools. This continued through to the opening of the new Primary Schools at Langlands in 1957 and the Canongate in 1972. The Burgh School had Primary pupils which became part of Madras in the amalgamation of 1963. There were Primary pupils at the new school at Kilrymont from 1967 to 1972. From 1972 only Secondary pupils attended Madras. This also allowed the school to accommodate extra pupils when the school leaving age was raised to sixteen in that year.

 School Newsletter Summer 2005 reported: 'Mrs Alexander of the Learning Support department retires after a long and distinguished career at Madras which spans 38 years. This has been in two stages, the first going back to the very beginning of the 'new' Madras, the large comprehensive school on the split-site set up on the completion of the Kilrymont Road building in 1967. Mrs Alexander was initially appointed by Dr Thomson to teach English. An enthusiastic and resourceful teacher she also involved herself in many activities, including debating, which she initiated in the junior school, folk singing and a play club. She moved away from the area for several years then returned in 1982 as a Remedial Specialist, as teachers of Learning Support were then described. Her initiatives included the Paired Reading Scheme that we still use to very good effect, and Action Aid work. She also assisted in the Chess Club and many inter-house activities. After completing her additional diploma in Learning Difficulties she became a Senior Teacher in 1990. Mrs Alexander's work at Madras has been characterised by a deep and genuine interest in children as individuals along with a strong desire to assist each of them to achieve their very best possible level of work. We thank her for her many contributions to the school and wish her well for a long and happy retirement.'

Dr James Auld

1850 - 1869

Mr Auld was appointed Classical Master at Madras in 1850. He had been Rector of Moffat Academy and formerly Rector of Pulteneytown Academy. He was awarded the honorary degree of LL.D. by Glasgow College in 1861. He advertised that he took in boarders. He resigned in 1869 and died in August 1871, supposedly from the stress of failing to get a professorial chair at St Andrews University which had been promised to him. There was a court action raised by his widow against the University Principal after his death.

School Newsletter Easter 1996 reported:

'Pipe Major Bert Barron The present strength of the school's Piping Society is due to the solid foundations established by Pipe Major Bert Barron. In the days when staff appointments were very much at the Rector's discretion, he was recruited by Dr Thompson who firmly believed that instrumental instruction in a Scottish school was unthinkable if it did not include piping. He could not have found a better instructor. Pipe Major Bert Barron was an outstanding performer, a notable composer of pipe music and a gifted teacher. Under his influence, Madras became known in the piping world as a centre of excellence and it was for a number of years the venue for national junior piping championships. Anyone who stayed on after school on Thursdays, quickly found the peace of the Quad shattered by the sound of pipes from behind every pillar with the Pipe Major flitting from pupil to pupil, coaxing, encouraging, setting high standards and getting the best out of them. His work has stood the test of time and given him a unique and special place in the school's musical tradition'.

She has been the consummate professional in her departmental work, her pastoral work and her contribution to the wider curriculum and activity of the school. Within five years of arriving she had been promoted, first as a temporary Guidance teacher then to Assistant Principal Teacher of English. Held in the highest esteem by colleagues for her hard work, organisation, effectiveness and fairness, she will be a difficult member of staff to replace. From an early stage in the welter of curriculum development during the last two decades Mrs Baughan has been a major contributor within her own subject, first in the Standard Grade implementation programme, then in Revised Highers and Higher Still. In the extra-curricular field she has been very active, most notably in debating and public speaking. It is in no small part due to her that the school now enjoys a national reputation in this activity. Despite all this achievement and contribution Mrs Baughan has remained modest and unassuming. We can only think how fortunate the school has been to have benefited from her many talents for a generation, and wish her the most fulfilling and happy of retirements.'

Mr Blakey's sons who were former pupils were also actively involved in school teams. Mr Blakey still maintains close ties with the school, at present being Chief Exam Invigilator.'

School Newsletter Easter 1996 reported:
'Mr Blakey Mr Blakey joined the staff in 1964 as a teacher of Maths. Because of his own deep commitment, he chose to retrain as a teacher of Religious Education. In 1981 he was appointed Principal Teacher Administration, a unique post specifically designed to overcome some of the difficulties of managing the split site. His mathematical skill and his meticulous attention to detail made him particularly adept in dealing with such tricky matters as timetabling and class cover arrangements. He was held in high regard by his colleagues, not least for his scrupulous fairness in allocating classes to them. Although he retired in 1989 he remained a familiar figure about the school, particularly during SCE Exams over which he presided as Chief Invigilator with his usual courtesy, efficiency and accuracy.'

School Newsletter Summer 1998 reported: 'MRS BRIDGES A major change this Summer comes with the resignation of Mrs Ann Bridges, Principal Teacher of Guidance and teacher of English, after 33 years service to Madras.

In the proud history of the school, many individuals are remembered for the enduring legacy which their teaching skills, contributions to the wider life of the school and often, indeed, their personalities have left us. We suspect that when the more recent annals come to be written, prominent amongst them will be the name of Mrs Bridges. Certainly Mrs Bridges' many years of outstanding drama productions, vividly remembered by so many, including former pupils who were thus launched into their careers, now join the myths of the past. Generations of pupils have benefited from her acute mind, eclectic love of literature and individual charismatic approach to teaching.

As a Guidance teacher, her humorous understanding showed in her evergreen empathy with the vagaries of teenagers taking blundering steps towards freedom and independence.

Leaving us well before normal retirement age, Mrs Bridges looks as lively and fresh as any of us, a vivid proof of her positive attitudes to school and to life in general. As an active figure on the national education scene of English teaching, she will no doubt continue to serve pupils' interests and represent the best professionalism of her colleagues for many years to come. Thank you, Mrs Bridges. We shall miss you.'

'Equally suddenly the sunshine turned to sorrow with the unexpected death of Mr Broom. Although he fought the illness, which was foreign to his active nature, with great courage and cheerfulness, his long struggle against it was at an end. Over twelve years he gave the school loyal and devoted service and the best tribute to his work is the number and variety of extra-curricular activities which the pupils normally enjoy. Although the Assistant Rector (Leisure) post he held suited his talents particularly well, since it enabled him to combine his enthusiasm for sport with his keen interest in people, the breadth of his interests and his fine personal qualities gave him an influence and standing that went beyond the mere confines of the leisure remit and determined the true value of his contribution to the life and spirit of the school. The measure of the success of that contribution is the esteem and affection in which he was held by staff and pupils. As a teacher, as a colleague and, above all, as a friend he will be greatly missed by us all. To his wife and family we extend our deepest sympathy.'

Miss Margaret Petrie Brown

Miss Brown came to Madras in February 1919 to teach English and History. She was educated at Dundee High School and St. Andrews University. Happily for her and fortunately for St. Andrews the association with the 'auld grey city' was broken only for a brief period of two years which were spent in Stranraer. A medal in her memory was donated to the school to be awarded for the best review of personal reading. She retired in October 1957 and died in 1991 aged 96.

Hers has been a distinguished career in which her capacity for work is legendary. Within the school she has been the focal point for curriculum development as well as looking after the SCE arrangements. While nationally she made an important contribution as Chairman of the Geography Working Party of the Central Committee on Social Subjects. Not least, she took a very active part in organising the 150th Anniversary celebrations. She will be greatly missed.'*

MCM June 1933 reported:
'After forty years of work as Mathematical Master in Madras College, Mr Carmichael retired at the end of the second term, leaving in the tradition of the school a deposit of sound mathematical teaching and of kindly dealing that must have wrought on the minds and hearts of countless pupils to make them clearer thinkers and kindlier men and women. At a farewell dinner with the Staff and some other friends, he and his good lady were bidden godspeed with the most cordial wishes for a long and happy leisure.'

Mr William W. Carmichael

Mr Carmichael was the first Classics Master at Madras. He was previously teacher of Latin and Greek in George Watson's hospital, Edinburgh. He had been headmaster of the Grammar School in St Andrews and resided in Madras House East. He left in 1843, going to the High School of Edinburgh. He had a house there on Calton Hill and also took in boarders. The following year in 1844 he went to teach in Edinburgh Academy. He died in 1848.

School Newsletter Summer 2004 reported: 'Mr Cleland, Principal Teacher of Classics and Religious Education, came to Madras in 1972 after two years teaching in Glasgow. Apart from being a lively and enterprising teacher and head of department Mr Cleland has had a number of wider involvements, including tutoring in the Open University, a secondment as a Fife Curriculum Development Officer in Standard Grade, a national Higher Still secondment, chairmanship of the national association of Classics teachers and numerous Scottish examination board contributions at various levels. His extracurricular input has included several foreign trips and the annual Hadrian's Wall trip in June. While the teaching of Classics has suffered in most other parts of the country it has continued to flourish in Madras. The credit for this must in large part be given to Mr Cleland. We thank him for leading his department so ably for 32 years and wish him every success and happiness in retirement.'

1856 - 1859

Dr Collier came from Belfast Academy to be Second English Master at Madras in 1856 and he also taught History. He left to be Master of English Language and Literature at the Edinburgh Academy in 1859 and then to be Headmaster at Belfast Royal Academy from 1880 to 1890. He wrote many school history textbooks, for example 'The Great Events in History' in 1860. He died in 1904 in Belfast aged 73.

MCM December 1904 p.31 reported:
'Reminiscences of Dr Collier by Ex-Baillie Aikman: The announcement which appeared in most of the papers lately that Dr. W. F. Collier, Headmaster of the Belfast Royal Academy, had died in that city at a good old age, recalls to some of us the time when he occupied the position of second English Master in the Madras College. Full forty years have come and gone since then; but those of his old scholars who are left remember well the excellent tuition they received from him, and the interest he managed to infuse into even the driest subject. In those days the Madras was a great institution; more than a thousand pupils entered its gates each day. Good secondary schools were rare, and the fame of the old College drew scholars from far and near. Dr. Collier taught the second-highest class, and a large class it was. While he was a good all-round teacher, History was what he took the deepest interest in. Later on, it was his text-books on this important subject that brought him fame, raised him to the front rank of his profession, and indeed made his name known wherever the English language is spoken. In teaching his class History, it was no mere filling the memory with dates or names of places. He had the wondrous power of vividly recalling the life of times long gone by; not only the battles of great outstanding events, but the ordinary commercial, social, and intellectual life of the period was so presented to the pupil that he could scarcely fail to be interested in and grasp them. But he was too able a man to remain long in the subordinate position he held in St Andrews. Soon - too soon - he left us for Glasgow, and afterwards went to Belfast, where for nearly a quarter of a century he was Head-master of its Royal Academy. Naturally he is most missed there; but in the other places where for a time he was - Aberdeen, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, and Glasgow - he left many friends, who watched his successful career with pride and interest, and who share the widespread feeling of regret his death has caused.'

School Newsletter October 1981 reported:
'Mrs Croll, who retired in September, had a life-long association with Madras College as a pupil, as a parent of pupils of Madras, and as a member of the P.E. staff. She gave generously of her time in introducing pupils to hill-walking and in coaching girls' hockey. The distinction gained by our girls at school, regional and national levels was due in no small measure to Mrs Croll's coaching and enthusiasm.'

Mr Thomas Carlisle Croll

1939 - 1980

Mr Croll came to teach Physical Education at Madras in October 1939. He was called up for military duties in December 1939 and came back in May 1940 having been released from the duties. He was promoted to be Principal Teacher in January 1952 and retired at Easter 1980. He was married in 1945 to PE teacher Helena McIntyre who retired as Assistant Principal Physical Education Teacher at Madras in 1981. He also taught at the Burgh School from August 1948 to July 1955. He died in 2004 aged 86.

School Newsletter Easter 1980 reported:
'At Easter, Madras College loses its longest-serving member of staff when Tom Croll, Principal Teacher of Physical Education retires after over forty years service to Fife. Bell-Baxter, Waid and Madras have all benefited from his quiet, steady influence, his enthusiasm for his profession and for sport, and his interest in the younger generation. I am sure I speak for countless former pupils as well as for present pupils in wishing him a happy retirement.'

'We welcome Mrs Joan A. Dobie today as guest of Madras College to present the trophies and award. Joan left Perth Academy in 1973 to commence her studies at Dunfermline College of Physical Education, graduating in 1976 with a diploma in P.E. After a short spell teaching in Perth, Joan began teaching at Madras College in 1979, retiring in 2013. Throughout Joan's teaching career at Madras College, she was fully committed and enthusiastic towards her extra curricular hockey and tennis clubs. Joan represented Midland's Schoolgirl's Hockey and Scottish Schoolgirls as a pupil in Perth Academy in S4, S5 and S6. As a P.E. student she played for the College first team, moving onto represent East District. Whilst playing for East District her skills were recognised by the Scottish Selectors and once again represented Scotland at senior level. In 1987 until the early 90's she was part of the Great Britain squad. Since her retirement Joan is continuing to ski and taken up hill walking, currently ticking off all of the 283 Munros in Scotland.'

Mr Dobie was engaged to teach a junior Latin class at Madras in 1848. He was a Divinity student at St Andrews University and a clash between his teaching and chemistry classes (taught by Dr Adamson who had taught earlier at Madras) resulted in him failing to take an Arts degree at the University. He took charge of the teaching and superintending the whole of the Classics department at Madras in 1850 when Dr Woodford left. He was assisted by David Paton. He resigned in 1852, first acting as assistant to Dr Woodford and then going to be Classical Master at Madras Academy, Cupar and also to instruct at the University. He was inducted to the pastoral charge of North Esk, Musselburgh in 1853. He died in 1904 in Crieff aged 82.

School Newsletter Summer 1996 reported: 'Mr Ian Douglas retires after 26 years of service as Principal Teacher of Technical Subjects. His quiet and unassuming presence tends to obscure the major part he has played in the development of his subject, not only within the school, but at regional and national level. At a time when Engineering was part of the school curriculum, Madras had an enviable reputation for the number and quality of its presentations both at Higher and SYS. Although Engineering as a subject in its own right was phased out, Mr Douglas's national involvement in curriculum development continued. When new courses for Standard Grade were introduced, his contribution to various subject panels and committees helped to move the subject away from its traditional craft/skills image and give it its proper position in a world increasingly dependent on technology. We are sorry to lose the benefit of his knowledge and experience, but we must be grateful to him for piloting the department through an era of massive change and leaving it well prepared to meet the challenges that lie ahead.'

A native of Tayport, Mr Douglas received his Art training at the High School of Dundee. He had a long and varied experience of teaching, serving successively in Dundee, Forfar, Elgin, Lhanbryd, and as Head Master at Londonderry School of Art. He entered upon his duties at Madras College in the beginning of Session 1889-90 when the school was reorganised. In 1898 he was examiner of freehand drawing of the engineering students at the Royal Indian Engineering College in London and in 1900 he was examiner in geometric drawing for science examinations at St Andrews University. His work in St. Andrews as elsewhere was characterised by ability, enthusiasm, thoroughness, and initiative which soon made him a wide reputation and St. Andrews was fortunate in retaining his services till June 1902, when he was appointed Art Master of Ayr Academy. He taught Drawing, Painting, Modelling and Wood Carving. He died in 1912 aged 48.

'Mr. Duthie, who for three and a half years was Assistant Classical Master in the College, has been appointed Classical Master in the Waid Academy, Anstruther. While regretting the loss to the School, we are glad that his capacities and scholarship have been recognized in his promotion. Before his departure he was presented by the Masters with a handsome smoker's cabinet, suitably inscribed. The pupils also met Mr. Duthie; and Miss Marjory Watt, in the name of the scholars, presented him with a writing desk and an umbrella. Master Leslie Smith, in a happy little speech, remarked on the cordial relations which had always existed between Mr. Duthie and his pupils, and assured him that they all wished him the greatest success in his future life. The Magazine will be the poorer by Mr. Duthie's departure, and the Committee will miss his unsparing labour and wise advice. We trust that he may sometimes find time to favour our columns with a contribution.'

School Newsletter Easter 1996 reported:

'Mr Edgar's retiral at Christmas after 24 years outstanding service to the school was a closely guarded secret and came as a surprise to many of his colleagues. He came from Jordanhill College in 1972 as Principal Teacher of English and was appointed Assistant Rector in 1984. He gave the English department strong leadership and gifted teaching. His experience of piloting it through many changes enhanced his contribution as a member of Board of Studies where one of his main areas of interest was the curriculum and the course choice structure. His training college background made him a natural choice as 'Regent' to advise and assist students and probationers. The school library, staff development, in-service training and the support systems for pupils with special needs have all benefited from the skill and vision he brought to their management. His wide range of interests in literature, art and music illuminated his morning assembly talks which were models of their kind, never failing to make a telling point in a memorable and interesting way. His quiet wit enlivened many a tedious Board of Studies discussion and when members were tempted to advocate superficially attractive solutions to problems, his sound common sense invariably brought discussion back to fundamental points of educational principle and practice. We shall all miss him as a friend and colleague, but we wish him every happiness in his retirement and thank him for all his unobtrusive hard work for the good of the school.'

'Herr Esser was born in a little village near Aachen. He enjoyed the privilege of a complete course of training in a German gymnasium - a classical school - hence his habit of quoting passages from the classics to his pupils. For several years he studied Philology, Modern Languages, and Higher Mathematics at the University of Gottingen. He studied in France before he proceeded to Scotland. His first situation was in the Collegiate School, Greenock, where he remained for six years, and where he taught not only modern languages but also Classics and Mathematics. For about three years he was assistant in the department of Modern Languages in Ayr Academy, teaching also a special class in Latin. He left Ayr to fulfil the important position of Headmaster of the Modern Languages department of the Royal Academy, Inverness. A year later in 1889, on the re-organisation of the Madras College, he was appointed Principal Master of Modern Languages and was here for twenty-four years.'

'It has been a great pleasure to have Ms Farr with us. Staff and pupils have warmed to her lively personality. The school and her subject department have gained much of value from her experience of a different system. It is hoped that ideas which have already been discussed for extending the link between Cheltenham High School and Madras can be further developed as one of an increasing number of contacts with the U.S.A.'

'After 42 years of teaching, 21 of which have been with the Burgh and Kilrymont, Special Classes, Miss Forrest is retiring. She is not yet of age to retire although next year she will. Miss Forrest says she has enjoyed teaching at Kilrymont very much and is sorry she is leaving. Her teaching career began in 1928, since which time, apart from St. Andrews, she has taught in Kirkcaldy and Rosyth. The staff are sorry to see her leave and have presented her with a most attractive brooch with a group of matched Tay pearls, which she has long desired. She lives on her own in Priestden Road, St. Andrews, and has no intentions of leaving the district as yet. All the Special Class pupils, especially, are going to miss her very much, and we wish her a long and happy retirement.'

 School Newsletter Summer 2002 reported: 'Mrs Fraser came to Madras in 1980 as Chemistry Teacher, became Senior Teacher in 1989 and was appointed as Principal Teacher of Chemistry in 1993. During her time in Madras she contributed to many significant changes to the curriculum which were taking place - her Principal Teacher in her early years, Mr Christie, noting how well she had assisted with Standard Grade, Scotvec Modules and Revised Higher. She had also been in charge of the re-writing of the S1/2 Science course between 1988 and 1993, a major exercise involving all Science colleagues. Once appointed as PT in 1993 Mrs Fraser used her talent for organisation and leadership to the full, showing the necessary determination, diplomacy and wider understanding of school or pupil needs that mark out the skilled head of department. She thus leaves a strong and successful department with an impressive esprit de corps and desire to continue to do great things in the future. During her 22 years Mrs Fraser has also taken part in a wide range of activities, has given outstanding service to school debating and public speaking, and has represented colleagues in both Parent-Teacher Association and School Board.'
 Sports Day programme 2003 reported: 'Today it is our pleasure to welcome Mrs Marion S. Fraser, as our guest at this year's Sports Day, to present the trophies to the individual winners and the House Championship Shield. Mrs Fraser took up the post of teacher of chemistry at Madras College in 1980, then gained promotion as Senior Teacher in 1989 and Principal Teacher of Chemistry in 1993, which she held until her retiral in 2002. Mrs Fraser also made a valuable contribution to debating and public speaking in the school and was actively involved in the School Board and the P.T.A. We are sure many pupils and staff will take this opportunity to make Mrs Fraser's Sports Day at Madras College both memorable and enjoyable.'

Mr Galloway came to Madras as Rector from the post of Deputy Rector at Bell Baxter High School in August 1985. He was educated at Daniel Stewart College where he was Dux in 1950 and went to Edinburgh University to study Classics. He served in the 13th/18th Hussars for his National Service and then studied for a further Classics degree at Cambridge University. This was followed by teacher training at Moray House and then to teach at Arbroath High School and Bo'ness Academy. In the 1970s he co-authored the Ecce Romani series of Latin textbooks for 12 years. He was appointed by the General Teaching Council for Scotland in Summer 1996 to serve as a Governor of Moray House College of Education. He retired Easter 1997. He was married to Lesley Galloway. School Newsletter Easter 1997 reported:

'Mr David D Galloway, Rector of Madras College since August 1985, retires this week amid tributes and celebrations.

Mr Galloway's services to pupils and the community have been recognised in presentations and tributes from the Parent Teachers Association, the Board of Trustees and the School Board. A dinner was held in his honour at the school on March 21st, attended by over 150 staff from Madras, past and present, as well as former colleagues from Bell Baxter High School and members of Fife Education Service Management Team: Mrs A Auchterlonie and Mr D Hill, who made a presentation to Mr Galloway on behalf of Fife Council. Mrs L A Brown, Depute Rector, paid tribute to Mr Galloway's leadership, which has guided Madras through twelve years of consolidation and change, maintaining the finest traditions of the school while moving it forward. Consistently high academic standards have been sustained and even enhanced, while the extra-curricular life of the school has flourished and its reputation for successes in many spheres, sporting and cultural, has grown locally and nationally.

Mr Galloway has supported and guided staff, sustaining morale and clear educational values during a period when the profession has been under intense pressure to accomplish wide-ranging changes, curricular and organisational. While many of these were justified in terms of bringing needed reforms and improvements to the quality of education, one of Mr Galloway's strengths as a Rector has been to protect his institution from those which, in his well-considered opinion, did not serve the best interests of pupils or the school in general. In this as in many other areas, he has enjoyed the respect and admiration of the whole staff, teaching and non-teaching, whose trust in his judgment has been absolute and never misplaced.

During his time as Rector, the role of the post has changed greatly. New responsibilities such as Devolved School Management and many national and regional commitments made inroads to his time in school. His skills as a diplomatic committee member were acknowledged in his appointment as Chairman of the Regional Committee which responded to the Howie proposals for Post 16 Curriculum, the forerunner of the 'Higher Still' initiative. In light of this, over recent years, one of his regrets has been having less time to spend with pupils whose company and opinions he has continued to seek. Senior pupils who have had the privilege to meet him on these terms are quick to discover his understanding and interest in their views - and to appreciate his dry sense of humour.

So we shall all miss David Galloway at Madras College. However, the School Aims, which he formulated and which embody the principles of a rounded education in citizenship which promotes but does not limit itself to academic excellence, remain to guide the school forward into the 21st century. In these columns, Mr Galloway has paid gracious tribute to many members of staff over the years. We use them now to thank him once more and to wish him the long, tranquil and fulfilling retirement that he so richly deserves.'

'Mr Grove also retires this session after a very long Madras and Burgh School career stretching back to 1965. At his request we have not included an article. We therefore content ourselves by saying a most sincere thank you and best wishes from all staff and pupils to this most modest of men.'

Sports Day programme 2001 reported:
'Today it is our pleasure to welcome back Mr Tim Grove as our guest at this year's Sports Day to present the trophies to the individual winners and the House Championship Shield. He has kindly agreed to interrupt his series of important visits to France and Italy and return for duty at our Sports Day ... we are highly honoured.'

Tim retired in June 2000 and has been missed by all especially the Modern Languages Department, where he was Deputy Principal for many years. He was, on his retirement, the longest serving member of staff boasting We are sure many pupils and staff will take this opportunity to make Mr Grove's return to School Newsletter Summer 2002 reported: 'Mr Halliday came to Madras as Assistant Rector in 1984. He supervised and coordinated the development of Standard Grade and Scotvec courses across the school to implement the new principle of 'certification for all'. He showed a rare grasp of content and structure of the curriculum while in charge of this process and also in his creation of course choice options and SCE (later SQA) examination arrangements. Soon he was to be put in charge of the timetable, an immense and complex operation in Madras. While Mr Halliday carried out such tasks with speed, skill and efficiency, he was also an important member of the senior management team, as year head, as faculty link for technological subjects, but most of all as a quiet and persuasive teacher and colleague who always strove to achieve positive outcomes from difficult situations. Generations of Madras pupils will remember Mr Halliday most of all, however, for his famous assembly stories - the 17 camels, etc. He has done much in recent years to reorganise the school day, change the S3/4 curriculum to offer eight courses to most pupils, but most of all to timetable the Higher Still programme in the senior school. During the last 10 years he has also served on several national committees for the Scottish Secondary Teachers' Association. He served the School Board with distinction for many years as teacher member.'

Sports Day programme 2002 reported: 'Today it is our pleasure to welcome Mr Donald Halliday, as our main guest at this year's Sports Day, to present the trophies to the individual winners and the House Championship Shield.

Mr Halliday took up the post of AHT at Madras College in 1984, having previously taught in Glenwood High School and Elgin Academy. St Andrews Citizen 1 July 1944 reported:
'We have a long and healthy tradition, and we have what is most important of all, an excellent staff, for buildings and traditions are of little avail unless we have good teachers. I am afraid, however, that we regard good teachers just as we regard good health — we don't value them at their true worth until we lose them. I mention this because I am sorry to announce that we are about to lose Miss Hamilton, who has completed twenty years' service in the school.

Miss Hamilton is the best Qualifying Class teacher I have ever met. Her services to education in St Andrews are incalculable and can never be adequately rewarded. I feel sure, however, that like all born teachers, she herself feels amply recompensed by the continued success of her pupils.

'The Qualifying Class this year has been even more successful than usual, if that were possible. Out of 24 pupils, no fewer than 19 have been passed as fit for a Secondary Course, and out of these 19, 13 have been graded A1 and will form more than half of Class 1a in the Secondary School next year, although we draw upon all the schools in the St Andrews area from New Gilston and Kingsbarns to Leuchars and Guard Bridge. It is no wonder, therefore, that I regard Miss Hamilton's resignation almost with dismay, and it will be extremely difficult to fill her post.'

School Newsletter Summer 1990 reported: 'Goodbye to Mr Hodge. The other side of the coin is that, sadly, a number of staff who have given the school out-standing service over many years are leaving. Chief among these is Mr Lindsay Hodge. Firstly, as Principal Teacher of Mathematics from 1962 - 1972 and, after a brief spell on the staff of the Training College, as Depute Rector since 1974, he has done more than any other single person to unite the school, set its standards, shape its character and guard its traditions. He has been unsparing in giving his time and energy to the school and its activities, untiring in his concern for the happiness and welfare of each individual in the school community, whether staff or pupil. As teacher, as administrator, or as colleague and friend he has been a source of support and encouragement to us all. He has been so much part of the Madras scene for so long, his departure is hard to accept. He goes with our thanks for a unique record of service, with our good wishes for the future and with an assured place in our affections and in the history of the school.'

Mr Hogg came to Madras in February 1925 as interim teacher of Mathematics, departing at the end of the month. He returned in June 1925 and left at the end of January 1926. He returned again as interim teacher in November 1926 until the end of January 1927. He had started his teaching career at Girvan then moving to Ayr Academy and to Kingussie. He was appointed as headmaster at Brora Secondary School but had to relinquish that post due to ill health. It was as he was recovering that he served at Madras College where he also taught continuation classes. On 1st September 1928 he joined the staff at Bell Baxter. He had served with the Royal Scots during the war and was a Sergeant-Major. He was wounded in Russia and spent a considerable time recuperating at Archangel before being invalided home. He became seriously ill in 1931 but returned to teaching before being admitted to hospital in 1932 and he died in January of that year aged 43.

'Mr Jessop, MBE, retired last week from his post of Principal Teacher of Modern Languages. 'CJ', as he was affectionately known to many, had come to Madras in 1994 as PT of French, then took over the new united department of Modern Languages in 1999. A late entrant to teaching after a distinguished career with the British Council, Mr Jessop soon developed his particular style as teacher, colleague and head of department. He will be remembered as a passionate European, relentless advocate of modern languages and charismatic leader of many foreign trips and exchanges. Despite his express wish that he should be 'allowed to go quietly' colleagues and pupils have seen him off in style. To honour his last day the flag of Europe (awarded to one of his pupils a year or two ago for a memorable contribution to the Youth Parliament in Strasbourg), flew on the South Street flagpole. All staff and pupils unite in thanking him for his unique contribution during his ten years in Madras.'

In his time there have been many curricular developments in which he has been closely involved. Indeed prior to joining us he was for two years Fife's Curriculum Development Officer in Geography, focussing mainly on the new Standard Grade development. Since then he has contributed to many regional developments in his subject. Recently his department has worked with Biology in establishing the new courses in Managing Environmental Resources. Also, as befits his subject he has been a keen advocate of fieldwork and outdoor pursuits for all stages in the curriculum. For example, the annual Lake District trip has become a very important part of the Higher course. As a promoted member of staff he also took a full part in many meetings and groups, including the weekly PT meeting, at which his pithy comments and tricky questions were regularly received! A quiet and modest man by nature he has been a thoroughly good and persistent advocate of his subject, a colleague liked and respected for his dry wit, and a real team-player in the best sense. We thank him warmly for his service to Madras and to Fife and wish him great fulfilment in retirement.'*

in perspective by the untimely death of Miss Kinnear, Depute Principal Teacher of Music*

*since 1975. While the seriousness of her illness had been known for over a year, all the indications were that she had finally conquered it through her resolution, her hugely positive view of life and the expert medical care she received. Staff, pupils and parents alike have been profoundly affected by this personal tragedy of the loss of a colleague, a friend, an inspiration, a guide. So lively, so energetic was she, that it has been quite exceptionally difficult for us to accept that she has passed from our midst.
We are grateful to the many people who have helped us to grieve, to come to terms with the loss, and to give thanks for her wonderful life, her influence for good, her special contribution to this school. Simply, we have all been privileged to know Elizabeth Kinnear.*

Particularly at this time of the year we think of Miss Kinnear's mother and brother, who have been in regular contact with us, giving and receiving support and discussing a fitting annual prize or award in her memory.'

*'Dr Gordon Kinnley has been appointed
Principal Teacher of Chemistry at Bell Baxter
High School. Much as we welcome the news of his thoroughly well deserved promotion, his departure is a very great loss to the school. His contribution to the development of S Grade Science has been considerable and the excellent results the school has had in Higher Chemistry owe much to his expert teaching.'*

'To prove that success is not entirely confined to pupils, Mr Andrew Lindsay, Principal Teacher of English, is to be congratulated on being awarded the Sloan Prize by St Andrews University for a short story in Scots.'

School Newsletter Summer 2002 reported:

'Mr Lindsay came to Madras in 1969 as teacher of English, his first post. His career has therefore spanned the introduction of the comprehensive system, the raising of the leaving age to 16, Munn and Dunning discussions leading to Standard Grade, TVEI, Alternative Higher, Revised Higher, Modules, 10-14, 5-14, and now Higher Still. In 1972 Mr Lindsay became Depute Principal Teacher of English to Mr Edgar, then in 1985 Principal Teacher. His early work in liaison with primary schools gave a solid foundation to the 5-14 programme while his regional work in Standard Grade helped the department to get to grips with the new challenge. Thus it has been in more recent years with the various initiatives being faced and implemented. A manager of a very large department Mr Lindsay has also made contributions to the wider life of the school. Most noteworthy have been his early work in using information technology to assist the school's presentation of official publications and his regular use of his rare literary talent, particularly in verse. The school Burns Suppers were for over a generation a forum for engaging flights of poetic fancy. All have suffered or celebrated his acerbic wit! Other school events have benefited from Mr Lindsay's famous skill, such as at the S6 Ball of 2001 when, as requested, he mentioned all 200 or so members of the year. Of the many characterful teachers Madras has produced Mr Lindsay must surely have a special place.'

'Mr Linton, Design and Technology department, came to Madras in 1981. His interest in both the traditional and modern sides of the subject was clear from the outset.

For a time, indeed, he worked in the Computing department having taken extra training courses in microprocessors and interfacing. Overall, however, his main interest was in the craft side of the subject, in which he was able to bring the best out of many pupils. This was also true of his interest in pupils with special educational needs. Mr Linton gave active support to his teacher association and contributed particularly in matters of safety policy and practice.'

Miss Isabella Lonie

Miss Lonie was a pupil monitor for English second class Classes at Madras in 1840.

Fifeshire Journal 6 August 1840

Dr William Ochter Lonie (Mr William Ochter Lonie)

1846 - 1889

Mr O'Lonie went to school in his home town of Kinghorn. At the age of 14 he was a bursar at St Andrews University and he graduated in 1844.

For a year he was assistant to a professor at the University then spent another year as a private tutor before taking the post of Headmaster of Mathematics at Madras College in 1846. He received the degree of LL.D. from St Andrews University in 1870. He also taught Natural Philosophy and Geography.

He married in 1849 and twin sons were born in 1850. Tragically his wife and one son died soon after. His surviving son had heart disease and died aged 26 in 1877. He left Madras when the school was re-organised in 1889, moving to Granton in Edinburgh. Dr Lonie died in 1894 aged 71.

The west coaster has delighted his colleagues with his tales and anecdotes but more importantly with his professional approach towards his teaching. Ross has contributed much to all aspects of school and he was delighted when his S1 Basketball team won the inaugural Fife S1 Cup against much more experienced squads. We would have loved to have Ross back with us next year, but budgets and rationalisation will see us drop by one member of staff next session. Good luck in your future career Ross!'*

St Andrews Citizen 7 July 1962 reported:
'At Christmas Dr McDonald retired, rather earlier than he had intended. The loss to the school was very great indeed. He was a distinguished mathematician and teacher of mathematics, as the continuing success of his pupils at University witnesses. But much more than that he was in a sense the school - the guardian of tradition and practice, omniscient about former pupils, a very skilled and human administrator. No school can have received such loyalty and service; no man can have been less obtrusive of his own merits.'

Mr Robert MacDonald

Mr MacDonald was appointed to teach Mathematics, Higher Arithmetic and Science at Madras in 1891. He had been assistant to Professor Butler in the university for some years previously. He left in September 1895 to be head Science Master at the Royal Belfast Academical Institution.

'Mr McDonald, A.P.T. Business Studies, who looked after the finances of the 150th Anniversary so ably as well as making a very effective contribution to the work of his department, leaves this week to take the post of P.T. Business Studies in Queen Anne High School, Dunfermline.'

Mr William James Macdonald

Mr Macdonald was a Mathematics Assistant at Madras in 1872. He was educated at Madras College and was dux of the school in 1868. He graduated from St Andrews University in 1871. He was then appointed as an assistant in the Mathematics department in Madras College. He only taught there for a short time before accepting an appointment as Mathematics Master at Merchiston Castle School in Edinburgh in 1873. In 1884 he moved schools, but remained in Edinburgh, when he went to Daniel Stewart's College. He spent the rest of his career, over thirty years, at this College. He died in 1941 aged 90.

He was a pioneer in the introduction of modern geometry into the mathematical curriculum, and his book 'A Higher Geometry' was widely used in schools and colleges. Mr Macdonald also acted as an external examiner in mathematics for the University of St Andrews for two periods of three years.

MCM Summer 1914 p.48 reported:

'We congratulate Mr. W. J. Macdonald, M.A., F.R.S.E., on the honour about to be bestowed upon him by his Alma Mater. Mr. Macdonald retired a year ago from a long period of service as Headmaster of the Mathematical department of Daniel Stewart's College, Edinburgh. As Secretary to the Secondary Teachers' Association, and as an active member of the Edinburgh Mathematical Society, he has added to his wide reputation as a successful teacher. Mr. Macdonald, like his brother, the Rev. J. R. Macdonald of Eskdalemuir, is an Old Boy, he was, during the Seventies, an assistant master in the Arithmetical department, and a year or two ago contributed a series of articles on his recollections as a pupil in the Madras College in the later Sixties.'

Mr Donald Forbes Macgregor

Mr Macgregor came to teach Modern Languages in Madras and the Burgh School in August 1963. In 1964 he transferred to teach only in the Senior School. He was appointed Deputy Principal Teacher of Modern Languages in December 1966. In Summer 1971 he went to teach in Germany for a year, returning to Scotland as Principal Teacher of Modern Languages at Dunoon Academy in Summer 1972. He returned to Madras in August 1974 as Principal Teacher of German, retiring in 1999. He has represented Scotland and Britain as a marathon runner in the Olympic games in Munich in 1972, the 1970 Commonwealth games in Edinburgh and the 1974 Commonwealth games in New Zealand.

After retirement he published his autobiography 'Running my Life'. He served as Chairman of the Madras College Archive Group and was a Trustee of St Andrews Preservation Trust. He was involved with North East Fife District as an elected Councillor and served on St Andrews Community Council. He died in 2020 aged 80.

School Newsletter Summer 1999 reported:
'Mr Macgregor, Principal Teacher of German
Mr Macgregor's service to Madras has been exceptional. His career with us, beginning in 1963 at a time when Madras College and the Burgh School were separate institutions, spans the entire era of comprehensive schooling in St Andrews. The energy and vitality he has always given his work is perhaps down to his career as a marathon runner for Scotland and Britain, during which he gained many distinctions such as 7th place in the Munich Olympics in 1972.

In his middle years, when most others were content to slow down, he kept up his highest possible standard, winning world 10k and marathon titles in 1979 and 1980. An athletic role followed in 'Chariots of Fire' which was partly filmed in St Andrews. With Mr Macgregor nothing was done by halves. For example, he has participated in 25 exchanges with a famous school in Kiel, an exchange which is itself the longest running in the whole country, going back to 1957. A prolific writer of courses and textbooks, he has helped many colleagues and pupils in Madras and far beyond to benefit from his knowledge, his enthusiasm and his skills. As if this was not enough, he has also served his civic and University community in various councils and committees down the years. All pupils and staff, past and present, join in thanking Donald Macgregor for a sparkling contribution to Madras College, its work and its traditions. We wish him happiness, a richly deserved break from the rigours of teaching, and we avoid using the word retirement because we suspect that, as in his whole career, he will cheerfully ignore all usual conventions.'

'At the end of this term we say farewell to Anne McGrory in the school office. There are few people who say as little as Mrs McGrory yet have such influence and respect. Immediate colleagues in the office say that they will miss her dry humour and amazing knowledge of them all. Many parents will know her as the warm welcoming face of the Kilrymont Reception, others as the calm voice on the telephone that made the particular crisis you were calling about just that little bit more bearable. Mrs McGrory's association with the school began in 1992 and she has been on the permanent staff since 1995. While her departure will leave a vital role to be filled she does leave behind (in the Kilrymont foyer) some of her most recent artwork, a new hobby that she will no doubt develop in her retirement. We thank her for her excellent service to pupils, parents and staff and we wish her happiness and fulfilment in the years ahead.'

'We welcome Mr Colin MacKay today as guest of Madras College to present the trophies and award. Colin arrived at Madras as an aspiring English teacher in 1974 and remained with his subject right up until he retired in 2011. In 1979 Colin joined the Guidance team as an APT and then went on to become PT in 1988. In 2000 he became a Depute Rector. Colin coached Madras teams for 33 years! The highlight of which was the season of 1997-98 when his U/18 squad won the 'treble' securing the Fife League, Fife Cup and Fife 5-a-side trophies.

Colin was a member of the Fife Schools F.A. Association for 25 years and was President of the Association in the late 80's. He was also a Fife Schools FA Council member on the Scottish Schools FA committee 1988-90.

In the 1980s Colin coached the school cricket teams and assisted organising Volleyball and Table-Tennis clubs. Colin will find it hard not to be pulled towards the Shot Putt 2 Circle where he officiated for each and every year of his tenure at Madras College - a Madras College Sports Day record!!

In his retirement he has not forgotten Madras College and has been heavily involved organising Fund Raising events for extra-curricular activities such as the School Fete in 2012 and this extravaganza of talent in the Musical Quadfest on Saturday June 22nd at South Street. Colin is also a member of the Madras College Social Archive committee.'

Mr William McQuat McKirdy

1958 - 1982

Mr McKirdy came to the Burgh School as Principal Teacher of Mathematics and Science in February 1958, coming from Kinross Secondary School. He had served from 1940 to 1945 as a radar officer in the Royal Navy before training as a teacher at Jordanhill. When the Burgh school amalgamated with Madras College he became Depute Principal Teacher of Science at the Junior Secondary School at Kilrymont Road. He was responsible for all Science teaching and was involved in the design of the Science rooms. As the school increased in size there was a need for other teachers to be in charge of the different Sciences; Firstly his remit was split in 1969 to appoint a Depute Principal Teacher of Physics with him being responsible for Biology and Chemistry and in 1976 it was split again, with a new Depute Principal of Chemistry and Bill McKirdy being Depute Principal Teacher of Biology. In August 1978 he became Deputy Principal Teacher of Resources and was instrumental in the development of a school Resources Centre. He retired from Madras Easter 1982 and died in December 1987 aged 68.

School Newsletter Christmas 1987 reported:
'Many former pupils and members of staff were sad to learn of the death of Mr William McKirdy. He came to the Burgh School in 1958 as Principal Teacher of Science. He moved to the Kilrymont Road Building when it opened where he served first of all as Depute Principal in the Science department. He subsequently took charge of the development of the Resources Centre where his work in establishing and equipping it has stood the test of time. He retired in 1982, a greatly respected teacher, remembered for his lively sense of humour and as a loyal and energetic colleague. We extend our deepest sympathy to Mrs McKirdy and her family.'

'Mr Mair, who had been seven or eight years in the School, first as classical assistant and then as principal English Master, left us to take over the important School of Clifton Bank. He will be very greatly missed both in the classroom and on the cricket and football fields. Our regret at his loss is somewhat mitigated by the fact that he is to be still in St. Andrews, and that we are sure to find him as honourable an opponent in the athletic field as we always found him a most valuable instructor and guide.'

'Dr Malcolm, Biology department, came to Madras in 1980. Despite his background of high academic qualifications and University teaching he rapidly became established as an enthusiastic and stimulating teacher whose individual and informal style was appreciated by pupils of all stages and abilities. Dr Malcolm, able to communicate his personal interest in Biology, brought a breadth of knowledge and a joy in learning for its own sake that rubbed off on pupils in his classes. His connections in the golf world and his great interest in the history of the game were used to very good effect during his teaching career, in local competitions, in coaching of teams of girls and boys, in writing of annual golf reports and in his influence in establishing golfing exchanges. In the Ohtawara Exchange he has also contributed annually to the hosting of Japanese visitors by leading a group visit to the Highlands. Dr Malcolm has donated many family artefacts to the school archive ensuring that generations of pupils and staff derive benefit from these original sources of school history.'

'On May 19th, the school welcomed Mr L Matheson, who arrived to take up his post as Rector. Mr Matheson was previously Rector at Milne's High School, Fochabers (near Elgin) and before that was at Inverurie Academy as Assistant. Rector, Lochaber High School (Fort William) as Principal Teacher of History, and Banff Academy. He was himself educated in Edinburgh and in Dunedin (New Zealand) where his family emigrated while he was a boy. On return, he went to St Andrews, then Oxford University and to a research college in Naples. He has a wife, Katherine, and two grown-up daughters, Sarah and Fiona.'

Sports Day programme 2007 reported:
'Mr Matheson. Today we welcome Mr and Mrs Matheson to our Annual Sports Day. No stranger to these fields Mr Matheson, the former rector, knows more than most, each and every blade of grass on the hockey, rugby and football pitches. In his ten years as rector, Mr Matheson fully supported the P.E. Department in our curricular and extensive extra-curricular activities and attended an enormous amount of matches here at Station Park. Educated in New Zealand and George Watson's Edinburgh, where he met his wife Katherine, he attended St Andrews University and completed his studies at Cambridge. Prior to coming to Madras College he was rector at Milne's High School, Fochabers.'

School Newsletter Summer 2007 reported:
'It became very clear that Lindsay Matheson was held in high esteem. His leadership and vision has developed a school with a sense of purpose and with the capacity for change. In this work Lindsay has shown sensitivity and compassion and he has balanced tradition with the need to respond to the new and increasing demands being placed on our education service. He has developed a school that is forward looking and mindful of the needs of all pupils at Madras.'

Sports Day programme 2017 reported:
'We warmly welcome Mrs Elaine Methven today as guest of Madras College to present the trophies and awards. Elaine is no stranger to Sports Day nor Madras College where she has had a constant connection since her first day in Secondary School at the new Kilrymont Road School in 1967. Elaine comes from a sporting family as her father was Madras College Athletic Champion in 1933. She met her equally sporty husband Steve at school and all three of their boys Jon, Ross and Mark have attended Madras College with the four 'boys' having played rugby for the school and the FPs for many years. Elaine's personal sporting achievements were in the fields of Hockey and Athletics where she represented the Midlands in her 5th and 6th year in the former and competed in the Fife Schools in the latter. After her four years of teacher training at Dunfermline College of Physical Education in Edinburgh, she returned to St Andrews to teach from 1977 until her recent retirement in 2016, only taking time off to bring up her family. A constant source of fun, professional efficiency and a caring teacher to generations of pupils, Elaine was a highly regarded member of staff who kept everybody on their toes and was a wealth of information as regards who was who in the school! Elaine easily fills her free time now with her two lovely granddaughters and she takes regular holidays to the Lake District with her extended family enjoying the country walks and having quality time together. We are delighted that Elaine accepted our invitation to present the medals and trophies and we hope she will enjoy the afternoon's sporting competition as well as meeting the staff and pupils of Madras College again. Remember to stop her for a quick chat as we believe Elaine likes a wee blether ;)'

He has served the department and the school with enthusiasm and energy ever since, becoming Senior Teacher in 1990. Apart from his normal junior and senior classes in both Biology and Science Mr Mole also contributed in a number of ways to the wider life of the school, including Junior Red Cross, Duke of Edinburgh and Chess Club. Outside school he became a Warrant Officer with the ATC and was elected a full member of the National Institute of Biology. Mr Mole took various administrative tasks and roles as part of the collective management of the sciences, most notably in organising day-to-day class cover for the faculty, at times a task that could be quite demanding. In 2002 in line with the opportunities created within the new McCrone structure, Mr Mole's Senior Teacher post was re-created as that of PT1 in Biology. We thank him for his contributions to Madras College for many years and wish him a very happy retirement.'*

Mr Moore was Head Teacher of Madras. He started his education at his father's school in Lauder and went to Edinburgh University. His University distinctions include fifteen prizes, six medals (including the first honours medals in Latin, Greek and French); the Scott and Dunbar prize for Greek; and the Rhind scholarship in classical literature. In 1895 he was appointed classical master in Campbeltown Grammar School; in 1899 he became Headmaster of Dornoch Burgh Higher Grade School; in 1907 he was appointed classical and modern languages master in Boroughmuir H.G. School and Junior Student Centre, Edinburgh. He was appointed as senior French master in 1909 at the Royal High School, Edinburgh before coming to Madras. He was chosen from 87 applicants. He advertised taking boys as boarders. He resigned in October 1920, going on to Edinburgh University to lecture in French. He was appointed to the Chair in French there in 1931. He was co-author of 'An Intermediate French Course'. He died in Grenoble whilst on vacation in 1932 aged 60.

MCM Summer 1912 p.48 reported:

'The Writing Master was a relative of Dr. Bell. He wrote the line we were to write in our copy books on a blackboard at the end of the room, we looking on, and he describing the peculiarities of each letter. I remember he called the capital D the pons asinorum, and gave us elaborate instructions as to the relative sizes of the various loops. He then walked behind the pupils, of whom there were about forty or fifty in the room, and saw if they were writing badly, or making blots. He was a terrible man for flogging, boys and girls alike, if they were late, hitting them on the hands with a long strap, and you were said, when this happened, to get your 'palmies'. Fortunately I do not remember ever having been late.'

- 1882

Mr Morrison was a pupil at Madras in the late 1860s and early 1870s. He was the son of Andrew Bell Morrison, the Writing Master at Madras and so he was also a relative of Dr Bell, the founder of Madras College. After graduating at St Andrews University he taught at Arbroath High School then came to Madras College to teach English. He left in 1882 to be Principal English Master at Merchiston Castle School before going to teach at Dunedin High School in New Zealand in 1885. Apparently he lost his set of golf clubs when landing and these turned up again in 1930. He returned to Scotland six years later. At this point he left the education profession and took up farming at Balmonth and Bonnytown farms. His scientific methods of farming brought him into prominence and he joined the Scottish Agricultural Commission in 1908 visiting Canada and later, Australia. He was appointed a member of the Scottish Land Court in 1913. He became Assessor of the University Court between 1905 and 1933. He had been representative of the Board of Trustees of Madras College at the University Court. He awarded a special prize for English at Madras in 1916. He had become a LL.D. in 1919 when he was again awarding the English special prize. He presided at the Madras prize giving in 1926. He retired from farming in 1925 and became a member of Fife Education Authority, a Justice of the Peace, a Governor of Madras College and later a County Councillor. He died in November 1933 aged 75.

Sports Day programme 2018 reported:

'We warmly welcome Mr Harvey M. Munn today as guest of Madras College to present the trophies and awards. Harvey is no stranger to Sports Day nor Madras College where he spent the vast majority of his teaching career in the Physical Education department and latterly in Guidance. Harvey started here in 1979 in the days of perms and short, short football shorts but after one year took up a post in Inverkeithing High School. He returned shortly after in 1981 where he remained up until his retiral on 1st July 2016. Harvey dedicated thousands of hours on extra-curricular activities engaging pupils in football, cross-country and athletics. His proudest moment was his under 15 squad lifting the Scottish Cup in 1996, although being an inspiration to athletes Andrew Lemoncello and Willie Kay stand high in his list of achievements. Harvey has clocked up countless miles transporting hundreds of pupils to Irvine for Cross-Country Championships, football teams to all parts of the country and latterly drove the minibus for netball where he even managed a temporary stay on a driveway in Tayport. Harvey easily fills his free time now with his golf, foreign holidays and spending time with his two lovely granddaughters. We are delighted that Harvey accepted our invitation to present the medals and trophies and we hope he will enjoy the afternoon's sporting competition as well as meeting the staff and pupils of Madras College again. Remember to stop him for a quick chat if you want a medical update or want to reference who scored the winning goal in the first round of the Scottish Schools Football cup in 1987!'

'Mr Neilson has had an even longer association with the school since he attended it as a pupil, returning from the Burgh School at the time of the amalgamation in 1964 to take up the post of Deputy Principal Teacher of P.E. Generation after generation of pupils have gained both fitness and enjoyment from his work in the gymnasium and the games field. He will now be able to devote his unbounded energies to his work for the mentally handicapped.'

We congratulate him on his well deserved promotion and look forward to the continued success of his efforts to extend the range and scope of computer studies and facilities within the school.'*

School Newsletter Summer 2004 reported: 'Mr Pardoe came in August 2004 and began his Madras career in Chemistry, arriving from the Midlands with four years of experience in teaching Chemistry, Physics and Photography. He quickly established his interest in helping to manage the curriculum, first in Chemistry as APT then, after retraining in 1984, as APT Computing. He then went on in 1987 to become the school's first Principal Teacher of this new subject. Extra-curricular interests have been wide and include clubs in electronics, amateur radio, computing, plus several trips abroad for skiing. His Novelty Sports have also entertained generations of pupils down at Station Park on Sports Day. Very substantial advice and support has been given by Mr Pardoe in establishing computing and network access throughout the school.

Thanks almost solely to his invention, inspiration and perseverance Madras had its own shrewdly constructed 'shoestring network' long before they became fashionable. His museum of computing in the school is a record of technological innovation and development from 1977 to the present day, and will remain an inspiration to others for many generations. We thank Arlen Pardoe for choosing Madras as the place to make his mark in life and we wish him every happiness and fulfilment in retirement.'

Sports Day programme 2005 reported: 'Mr A. Pardoe. Originally from the West Midlands, Mr Pardoe began his teaching career as a physics teacher in Birmingham. He arrived in St Andrews in 1972 where he joined Madras College as a chemistry teacher. He retrained as a computing teacher in 1983-84 and was appointed to the first ever post of Principal Teacher of computing in 1987. Mr Pardoe contributed greatly not only to the department but to the whole school, he ran the ski club and organised the novelty sports events for a number of years. He built up the school intranet, website and was heavily involved with the creation of the school network and still managed to find time to produce very amusing department Christmas cards.'

2004 - 2011

He continued to serve as Chief Invigilator for the SQA Exams for the next seven years. He was also a founding member of the Madras College Archive Group in 2008 and designer of the archive website.

School Newsletter Easter 1990 reported:
'A quite unexpected change has occurred with Mr Paterson's very recent appointment as data analyst at Regional headquarters. He came to Madras in 1972 as Principal Teacher of Mathematics and many pupils owe their good results and their lasting interest in the subject to his skilled teaching. As Assistant Rector since 1980 he has been a key figure in the management of the school — the architect of its timetables, the organiser of its daily routine, the writer of countless UCCA reports and a source of wise advice for both staff and pupils. He takes up his new duties immediately after Easter and we are still trying to adjust to the suddenness of his departure. We congratulate him on his promotion to an influential post in the education service and wish him well in the corridors of power.'

Known for his quiet manner and modesty he has been a constant contributor to school life both curricular and more generally. His talent has been in getting the best out of pupils of all abilities as evidenced by his success in SEB, SCE and SQA results down the years. Extracurricular involvements have included the annual 3-Day staff-pupil Karting challenge at Knockhill. As SSTA Safety representative Mr Pearson served for many years in keeping successive rectors 'on their toes'. Mrs Regent taught English at Madras Kilrymont in 1971. In January 1972 she went part-time. She resigned in 1974. She was born Hanna Karola Zurndorfer in Dusseldorf. She escaped from Nazi Germany with her sister in May 1939 on the last Kindertransport and both her parents had perished. She published a book about her experiences of Kristalnacht 'The Ninth of November' in 1988. Following that the school she had attended as a child invited her back to talk and changed its name in her honour. She had stayed in London with relatives but was evacuated. She excelled at school and as a fluent German speaker worked for a year in 1944 as a research assistant for the government who then covered her fees to take a degree in English at Bedford College.

She worked in the newspaper industry, married, had a daughter and moved to Newport-on-Tay in 1965, qualifying as a teacher in 1971. After her time at Madras she taught at Dundee College of Technology and at Harris Academy for about ten years. She died in December 2023 aged 97.

Mr John Robertson

- 1888

Mr Robertson was an assistant in the English department of Madras in 1888. He had been educated in the Church of Scotland Training College and St Andrews university where he distinguished himself as a bursar and prizeman in the various branches of study. He was a veteran of the famous 'Wet Review' in Edinburgh in 1881. He had previously been a pupil teacher in Letham Public School. He left Madras to fill a vacancy in one of the grammar schools in Montreal, Canada from a list of sixty university applicants. He then taught at Brighton Grammar School before becoming an Army schoolmaster in India for 14 years, seeing service during the Boer War and leaving as a Lieutenant. He returned to Scotland and taught in Fife and Glasgow before moving to teach in Yell, Shetland for 5 years. He married in 1913 whilst teaching in Sullom for 5 years. He finally taught at Ollaberry until he retired in 1929. He died in 1950 aged 86.

'We welcome Mrs Viv Rough today as guest of Madras College to present the trophies and award.

After leaving Waid Academy in 1969, Viv continued her studies at Dunfermline College of Physical Education, graduating in 1972 with a diploma in P.E. She married Jim Rough in 1973 a former pupil of Waid Academy and spent her early years teaching in Nigeria. On her return to Scotland she taught at Auchmuty High School for 6 years, before moving to Madras College in 1990, as a teacher of P.E. Her pastoral qualities lead her into Guidance, first as an APT and latterly Principal Teacher of Guidance. She retired from teaching in the summer of 2010 but is still a familiar face at Station Park on a Saturday morning umpiring school hockey matches. She is fondly remembered by her pupils over the 20 years she spent at Madras College for her enthusiasm and commitment to extracurricular sport, in particular hockey and athletics. Viv has 2 sons, both of whom attended Madras and is now a proud grandmother to 3 grandchildren and can often be found on babysitting duties in Aberdeen. She also serves as a volunteer on the Fife Children's Panel, making good use of her valuable experiences as a guidance teacher. Viv and her husband Jim, who is also retired, are both actively involved in the Wormit community. For many years, Viv has been a familiar face as a track judge at Sports Day, however today we hope she will enjoy a more relaxing duty, presenting the medals and trophies to the many successful athletes. We warmly welcome Viv back with us today at Station park.'

'By her colleagues Miss Sanderson will ever be remembered for her extreme sense of duty. Never when in her heart was heard its timely mandate did she defer the task imposed. Never has she allowed herself to lose sight of her high ideals ; never has she forgotten the dignity of her chosen profession, and not only to her own department but to the School she has given her heart and soul and mind and strength. All new members of the Staff will recall her immediate friendliness and hospitality: all 'assistants' and students from Germany her generosity in her eagerness to welcome them and to introduce them to Scotland ; all her pupils, her personal interest in them, and those who sealed the heights her accuracy, her preciseness and her scholarship.'

'At the end of term, the head of that department, Miss J. Scott, retires after nearly 24 years as a principal teacher, first in the Burgh School and subsequently in Madras College. Her term of office has seen the department guided firmly but sympathetically through the many changes in curriculum and organisation that have taken place in that time. Her administration has always been impeccable; and her staff and her pupils have had her constant support. We all wish her a happy retirement.'

'Mr Sandy Smart Sandy Smart has been a cornerstone of the Technical department at Madras College for 30 years, having joined the staff in 1967. In 1980 he was appointed to the post of Assistant Principal Teacher and his steady service over the years has contributed much to his department. Sandy has also had a high and energetic profile with the staff as a whole. He has been an excellent representative for all members of the SSTA. His friendly extrovert personality and his musical abilities have been assets often in demand, both as an active member of the Staff Social Committee and in memorable performances for pupils, raising funds for charity. We wish him a long, happy and active retirement, confident in the knowledge that he will enjoy it to the full.'

Sports Day programme 1998 reported:
'Today it is our pleasure to have Mr A Smart as our guest at this year's Sports Day to present the trophies to the individual winners and the House Championship winner. Mr Smart taught in the Technical Department of the school for 30 years, 20 years as Assistant Principal Teacher. He acted as SSTA representative throughout his career and played a major part in all aspects of the life of the school. He was actively involved in the Staff Social Committee, Red Nose Day productions, sporting events and musical occasions etc.

Outside school, caravanning and the Tayport Instrumental Band have occupied most of his time.

We are sure many pupils and staff will take this opportunity to make Mr Smart's return to Madras College a memorable and enjoyable visit.'

Mr David James Smeaton

1841 - 1854

Mr Smeaton came to teach Arithmetic at Madras in 1841 from the Parish School of Strathmiglo. On 1st March 1854 he left after a disagreement with the Madras trustees and set up his own school, first in South Street, then Market Street and finally at Abbey Park. Madras makes an award for the best artist and the medal for this is labeled 'Mr Smeaton's Institution, St Andrews, July 1860'. How Madras came to use this is lost in history. He died in 1871 aged 60.

'Besides these public institutions there are others of a more private nature, the most celebrated of which is that of David J. Smeaton, Esq., Abbey Park ; at which not less than 80 young gentlemen, from all parts, are boarded and educated. Besides the personal superintendence of Mr Smeaton, there are five resident tutors within the establishment, and five separate masters.'

MCM Summer 1912 p.48 reported:

'Mr. Smeaton, the Arithmetic master, was really a great man. He ruled with a rod of iron, and you could have heard a pin fall in his class. Indeed, when we had all got settled in our places he went to his desk, and let a pin fall, so that we might hear it. There was something, I think, in this realistic teaching. He taught the rules of arithmetic admirably. He afterwards left the Madras and started a private school of his own. It was very successful, and he prepared many boys for the Indian Civil Service Examinations, which began soon after he set up his school. Two of his own sons entered that service, and rose to great eminence there.'

School Newsletter Summer 1996 reported:
'Mrs Alma Smith, who had previously made her mark when she was with us for several months in an acting capacity, became Principal Teacher of Art and Design in 1989 and immediately set about renewing and revitalising the Art department. The result of that process and an immense amount of hard work on her part is a department known for its excellence in school and beyond. The numerous successes gained by her pupils past and present, the quality of the work displayed in the biennial Art Exhibitions and the lively atmosphere guaranteed to attract pupils to the subject are all a tribute to Mrs Smith's personal and professional achievement. The high profile of the department is only matched by the extent and warmth of the regard in which Mrs Smith is held by colleagues and pupils alike, by whom she will be greatly missed and long remembered as a colourful personality.'

'Mrs Margaret Sommerville retires at the end of term after 20 years of loyal and devoted service.

Although officially a teaching auxiliary, she will be far better known to several generations of Madras pupils in her role as school nurse and first-aid lady, the healer and comforter of countless pupils suffering from every conceivable ailment or injury, most of them fortunately of a minor kind. They will remember with affection and gratitude the kind and careful attention which she unfailingly gave them. In between tending the casualties she has played an important part in the school's administrative system, since attendance, registration, requisitioning and reporting procedures all came within her sphere. Her skill as a flower arranger brought an extra dimension to staff functions and other school occasions. Although much of her work has been behind the scenes, the qualities she has brought to it will make her extremely difficult to replace. We thank her for the outstanding contribution she has made to the life of the school and wish her every happiness in her retirement.'

Mr Szabo came from Transylvania to Scotland in 1849. He had been involved in the resistance against Austria as a Captain in the siege of Komarom and accepted part of the offer from the Austrians to take good terms and end the war by surrendering. This gave him enough resources to come to Scotland. He started to teach French and German in Cupar, Dundee and St Andrews, assisting Samuel Messieux. He learnt the art of photography from Thomas Rodger and also worked with Sir David Brewster and Sir Henry Fox Talbot, both important figures in the history of photography. In 1856 he was made an honorary member of the Photographic Society of Scotland and left St Andrews, going to Edinburgh to set up a highly acclaimed photographic business there. Madras had once described him as one of the 'foreign riches' brought to St Andrews by the school, thereby promoting the school's importance. He died in 1858 aged only 36.

'Miss Taylor, the Assistant Rector in charge of S5/6, has retired. She came in 1979 as Assistant Rector (Guidance) having already held senior posts in two other schools. Initially, her responsibility was the coordination of Guidance. In a split-site school that is a demanding task. The effectiveness of the present Guidance system is a tribute to the success of her efforts. The Careers and Social Education programmes also bear the hall-marks of her energy and organisational skill. More recently her area of responsibility has been S5/6 where her experience and knowledge have been invaluable especially in the counselling of the UCCA candidates. Her unfailing insistence on the highest possible standards, her clear perception of problems and their solutions, the professionalism of her approach and her immense capacity for hard work have enabled her to make a unique and lasting contribution to the management of the school for which we are all greatly in her debt. The gap left by her departure will indeed be difficult to fill.'

Dr John Thompson

Dr Thompson was Rector of Madras College, coming in September 1955 from Daniel Stewart's College, Edinburgh. His teaching career started at Bedales School, Hampshire and after a spell at Workington Grammar School he went to Edinburgh in 1947 as Principal Teacher of History. He was co-author of history books 'A Scottish History for Today'. He retired in 1975 and died in November 1993 aged 80. He had lived in Madras House East which he had purchased from Fife Council.

School Newsletter Christmas 1993 reported his death:

'Dr John Thompson. The sudden death on 20th November of Dr John Thompson, Rector of the school from 1955-1975, saddened the many former colleagues, former pupils and friends to whom he was a well-kent and well-loved figure. To those of us who were taught History by him, albeit long ago and in another place, his influence extended beyond the classroom and lasted long after school days were over. With him, it was not just a case of imparting knowledge of his subject. His teaching had that extra dimension from which pupils imperceptibly acquire attitudes, values, independence of thought and breadth of view. As Rector of Madras, he saw the school change from a small, selective senior secondary into a large, modern comprehensive, a process made all the more difficult by the split site and the amalgamation with the Burgh School. The smoothness with which that long and complicated transition took place is a lasting tribute to his managerial and inter-personal skills, although he would undoubtedly have dismissed such jargon with one of his pithy comments. Although he had an almost legendary reputation as an expert arranger, he was no mere administrator. He had a healthy disregard for bureaucracy in any form and nothing pleased him better than following his own highly individual line, although it was always for the good of the school and out of concern for the best interests of staff and pupils. As with his own teaching, his vision and wisdom were evident in the direction he gave the school. In practical terms there is much we owe to him: he gave school music its present strength by making instrumental tuition widely available; he set up the Kiel Exchange, which almost 40 years ago was a remarkable innovation; he acquired the cottage in Glen Tilt for school use; he began the push, which is still ongoing, for improved library facilities; he put a Guidance system in place several years before it was national policy; and in the enlightened treatment of senior pupils, of which the S6 Committee structure is a prime example, he was also far ahead of his time. It was even his idea to replace the previous unsightly gravel with the now much admired front lawn. His exceptionally clear perception of the school's future was balanced by his deep and detailed knowledge of its history. These elements came together in the new Madras which grew up on the split site. It did not slavishly follow the latest trends. It did not always march to the beat of the Regional drum. In some ways it was refreshingly unconventional; in others it was almost stubbornly traditional. Its confidence in its own destiny provided it with the strength and resilience to face an even more challenging future. The distinctive ethos remains. The school, as we know it today, is still very much John Thompson's creation. In remembering his educational achievement, let us not forget the kind of man he was.'

His teaching career began in Kirkcaldy H.S., progressing to Inverkeithing H.S. and then on to Madras College in 1980. Terry spent 29 years teaching at the school, retiring in 2009 and is fondly remembered as a successful Principal Teacher. It is not only his teaching that was valued, but his tremendous commitment to extra-curricular sport, in particular rugby and cricket. Terry spent many a winter rearing the next generation of Madras College rugby players on a Saturday morning at Station Park, with one of his finest moments winning the Scottish Schools Plate Competition. On the cricket field, his experiences gained playing for Freuchie in the winning Villages Cup Competition at Lords was always most welcome and the Madras youngsters benefited from it. A pupil of Bell Baxter H.S. in Cupar (where Terry still holds Javelin records, indeed he threw at the Scottish Schools Championships), Terry has four children (his son Mr C. Trewartha teaches in the Maths department at Madras College) and he is a proud grandfather. For many years he has been a familiar face at Madras College Sports Days as Convener and his experiences and vision have helped shape the event that you will see today. We wish Terry an enjoyable return to the Sports and hope that he will enjoy a more relaxing duty today presenting our trophies and medals. We are delighted to welcome him back today.'

Scotsman 26 July 1902 reported:
'RETIREMENT OF A SCHOOL INSPECTOR — Mr A. Walker, for the last six years Chief Inspector of Schools in the Northern Division of Scotland, retires on 31st July after thirty-two years and seven months' service, the last seventeen months being an extension beyond the age limit prescribed by the Superannuation Act. After serving his apprenticeship in Kirkcaldy Burgh School, under Dr John Lockhart, and spending one year in Edinburgh Normal School, he gained the Jardine Bursary at the University and went through the arts course, taking a distinguished place in Latin, and a good one in mathematics and natural philosophy. In 1859-60 he was appointed assistant to Professor Pillans, and entered the Divinity Hall. In 1860 he was appointed tutor to the three younger sons of the Earl of Minto, and occupied that position for four years. During the next five years he taught in various capacities in Inverness Academy, Greenock Academy, and the Madras College, St Andrews, and was appointed Inspector of Schools in January 1870. His work lay in Perth, Fife, Forfar, Kinross, and Clackmannan, with occasional incursions into Caithness, Sutherland, Ross and Cromarty, and Skye. He inspected the greater part of the Perthshire schools for twenty-seven years in succession. His only literary work was the translation, in 1869-70, for the Ante-Nicene Library, of the Apocryphal Gospels, Acts, and Revelations.'

'Mrs Elspeth M. Wallace. Originally from Stranraer, Elspeth graduated from Dunfermline College of Physical Education with a diploma in P.E. Her teaching career began in Denny High School in the P.E. department and she arrived at Madras in 1988. Elspeth worked in the P.E. department until she retired from teaching in 2009 after 21 years in Madras College. She is fondly remembered not only for her teaching, but for her tremendous commitment to extra-curricular sport, in particular hockey and athletics. She is still a familiar face in the winter at Station Park of a Saturday morning, regularly umpiring the Madras College home matches. In the summer, she still returns to help on heats days as well as Regional Athletics tournaments. Her experience gathered in 36 years as a stalwart of Fife Athletics is always most welcome.'

In her 16 years at Madras Mrs Welsh became an integral part of the excellent service provided by the Guidance team. She was a thoroughly positive and professional colleague whose sound advice and careful concern at all times reinforced the good side of school life and minimised any issues that arose. Popular with pupils, parents and colleagues alike she helped to create a style of pastoral care that will serve the school well as our support structures adapt to change. We thank her very warmly and sincerely for an outstanding collegiate contribution and wish her well in her new post.'

'The History department suffers a double loss this year with the departure of Mr Wemyss. A former pupil of the school he returned to teach in 1972 and was promoted to A.P.T. Guidance in 1976. For many years he managed the evening classes which preceded Community Use. In addition to his involvement in the more obvious activities of rugby and cricket, he instructed many pupils in the art of small bore rifle shooting. His wide ranging interest in history has been put to good use in his teaching. He was one of the first to see the advantages of the computer, both as a means of preparing classroom resource material and for monitoring pupils' attendance, which latterly became a major part of his Guidance work.'

School Newsletter Christmas 2014 reported: 'Farewell to Mrs Wilson. We are very sad to be saying goodbye to Morag Wilson who leaves our office staff after over 20 years loyal service at Madras. She has divided her years between the buildings, alternating many times and getting a feel for the entire school which she has said is very important to her - to be able to see the school as one collective whole. It is because of this experience of both buildings that Morag decided that all of the office staff working in the school should alternate between schools, so that they too can appreciate the entire school, as well as getting to know the different atmospheres that come with the different buildings. It is not only in her work that we will miss Morag, but in the vast array of extra activities run by Madras in which she partook. Throughout her years she has been heavily involved within the school, playing the fairy godmother in the staff pantomime, strutting her stuff as a punk rocker in the school fashion show and fundraising for two years and then going to Namibia to teach young children there and help set up a school library. This trip is one Morag says she will never forget and describes it as a life changing experience. Recently, attending a 'Madras former pupils' lunch, Olav Darge, Depute Rector, said that if one were to cut Morag Wilson's heart in half they would find 'Madras' inscribed all the way through it like a stick of Blackpool rock. Morag is now moving on to spend 6 months in Australia with her new partner before returning to Scotland to enjoy retirement at home and surely to visit us frequently. We thank Morag for her excellent contributions to the school and we wish her the very best for her future.'

Dr Edward Woodford

1843 - 1850

Dr Woodford, was Classics Master at Madras for six years until 1850, when he left to become Inspector of Schools for Scotland. In addition to Latin and Greek he was also appointed to teach Hindustani - not because of any direct connection with the real Madras, but because in many cases the boys were boarders whose fathers were serving overseas in the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Army and the boys themselves were more than likely to follow them into these professions. He studied medicine before gaining a Classics bursary at Kings College Aberdeen and changing courses. He taught in Aberdeen, in the Southern Academy Edinburgh and in Jedburgh before coming to Madras. He was the author of a number of books including 'Elements of the Latin Language', 'Epitome of Caesar's Commentaries', 'Eclogae Horatianae'. He died in 1869 aged 68.

Mr Alexander Ayton Young

1925 - 1954

Mr Young was the Principal Art Master at Madras. He was educated at Ayr Academy and later studied at Edinburgh Art College until 1915. While there he won the College Bursary. He was also awarded a Keith Prize for the best picture exhibited by a student in the R.S.A. Exhibition of 1920, and the MacLaine Watters Medal for colour done in the R.S.A. School of Printing in the same year.

The first post he held was in View Park School, Edinburgh in 1914, until he joined Edinburgh College of Art in 1915 as an Assistant Lecturer, where he remained until leaving on War Service in 1915. On returning from Service Mr Young became Assistant Art Teacher in George Heriot's from September 1918 to July 1919, following that by a short period at George Watson's. Mr Young then became Principal Art Teacher at Alloa Academy in 1922, where he remained until he took up his appointment to Madras College in November 1925. He died suddenly in February 1954 aged 63.

Mr Andrew Young

1840 - 1853

Mr Young was Head English Master at Madras. After passing through a distinguished eight years literary and theological course at the University of Edinburgh, he was appointed in 1830 as Head Master of Dr Bell's School, Niddry Street, Edinburgh. He started with eighty pupils and finished with nearly six hundred. He came to Madras in 1840 and retired in 1853, going to Edinburgh. He is well known as the author of the Hymn 'There is a happy land', published in 1838. He had the use of Madras House West where he made a substantial income from boarders. He died on St Andrew's Day 1889 aged 82.

MCM Summer 1912 p.48 reported:

'Mr. Young, the English Master, was something of a poet, and was the author of a hymn then well known, beginning—'There is a happy land.' He had one large class-room, and only one, and all the classes were held there at the same time. The forms were set out in bays round the room. A big class had a big bay and a small class a smaller one, and the girls sat at one end of each bay, and the boys at the other, and we used to nudge the boys in the other bay behind our backs, and hit them with slates, and they us. We read in turn from some hateful hook, I think it was called 'The Third Heading lessons,' and we learned to repeat the metrical Psalms, which we repeated verse about—a somewhat distasteful occupation to me when it came instead of the Jacobite songs.'

'Miss Young who joined the staff of the Modern Languages department in 1971 is now retiring after being absent for some time. Her outstanding commitment to her subject has been displayed in her regular participation in trips abroad and her willingness to undertake extra training to obtain a teaching qualification in Spanish. Outwith the department, the smooth running of staff common room arrangements was in her capable hands. We thank her for her dedicated hard work over the last 25 years which so often gained successful results even for those who were sometimes reluctant learners, and wish her well for the future.'

19th century staff lists tended to contain only the names of the Headmasters of the different departments. They were sometimes published in various trade directories such as Slater's, Oliver & Boyd's and Westwood's. Not every year had staff lists. The annual closing and prizegiving ceremony was well reported most years including full lists of prizewinners and the headmasters and in some cases the assistant teachers were also named. This was not consistent and after the new system was adopted in 1889 this information dried up.

The Buildings

Madras College opened in 1833 on grounds to the south and west of the ruined Blackfriars' Church. Final plans had been submitted for approval by architect William Burns to the Trustees in October 1831 and in March 1832 contractors were appointed. The foundation stone was laid on April 9th 1832.

Pupils were able to start in the first part of the school completed on the south side of the quad in October 1833. Subsequent work completed the rest of the original building, cleared away the old buildings around the church and saw the construction of Madras Houses East and West as residences for the English and Classics Headmasters. Other building work continued until the quadrangle was drained and Caithness stone slabs were laid in 1843. In 1861 the building to the south of Madras House West was built to offer sheltered schooling to young ladies and it subsequently housed the Kindergarten. The buildings were then in a state that was more or less unchanged for the next 100 years.

In 1889 changes took place to the rooms on the east, south and west sides of the quadrangle. They were subdivided to give two rooms on the east and west sides and four on the south side, one of which was a science laboratory. These changes survived until the remodelling of 1955.

In 1951 a temporary building, a HORSAs hut (Hutting Operation for the Raising of the School-Leaving Age), was built at the east side of the school to provide accommodation for a classroom, a workshop and a domestic science room. Plans were drawn up for a large extension to the south of the existing building to double the number of classrooms. There were also other huts in use at this time including one used as a dining room. By 1955 the laboratories to the south of the quadrangle had been improved and a technical drawing room set up at the west end. The erection of new buildings further south had provided a gymnasium, two art rooms, a sewing room, classrooms and a staffroom. At the same time the north wing of the 1833 building had seen substantial change. The gymnasium on the upper floor became a new assembly hall with extended floor space and improved access. At the east end a new staircase was made and the floor level raised to make a stage with two dressing rooms below. On the ground floor a small library, school office and Rector's room were formed.

Most of the primary school pupils were relocated in 1957 to the West Infant school so by 1960 the Kindergarten building had been altered by removing partitions to provide two rooms instead of four, one as a biology laboratory and the other as a commercial subjects room. A darkroom for photography was also created.

In 1962 the huts on the south side of the school were demolished and temporary Medway huts were placed at the front of the school.

In 1963 the school merged with the Burgh school to provide comprehensive education to all pupils. A new school was built on the Kilrymont site and opened to pupils in 1967. Few changes happened throughout the life of the school; internally the cloakroom areas were modified, mainly for safety reasons, and more offices were built on the ground floor. An all-weather sports pitch was developed beside the gymnasium.

A new tower block was built to the south of the school providing laboratory accommodation for sciences, homecraft and technical subjects and was in use in 1965. This joined to a new wing to the east of the site providing more classrooms on the upper floor and a new assembly hall, dining room and careers room on the ground floor. A swimming pool was also built south of the gymnasium. There were internal changes where the south side of the quadrangle was no longer used for teaching, the east part became a stage for the new assembly hall and the west part a staff room. The rooms in the middle were used for administration and welfare. On the north side the old assembly hall became a library and the old stage became classics rooms. When the work was finished the Medway huts at the front were removed.

In 1967 Madras House West was no longer in use as a master's house and was converted to be used for music instruction. Madras House East had been purchased by the Rector, Dr John Thompson. On his death it was sold to a worldwide cancer research organisation.

In 1978 alterations were made to the stage to create the Quad Theatre. This allowed performances with the audience close to actors without using the assembly hall.

There was considerable upheaval in 1985 which resulted in the creation of eight additional practical rooms within the existing structure in South Street. The size of the dining room was reduced to make a new computing room and the staff room at the west end of the quadrangle was removed to create a large business studies area.

In 1995 there was pressure on accommodation as the school roll increased and six new teaching rooms were installed in huts in the playground at the base of the tower building in South Street. This was one of the few available spaces left.

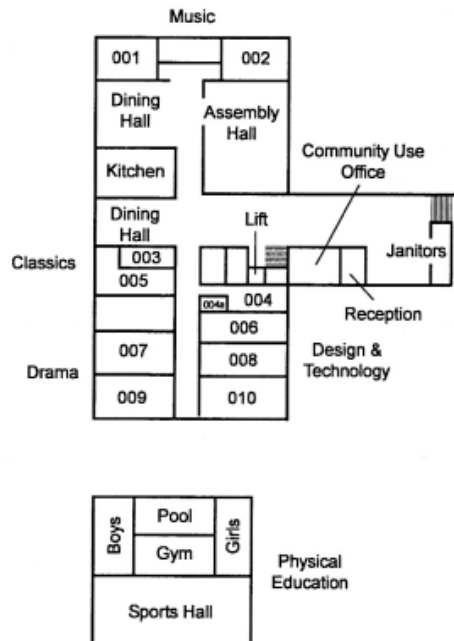

Once the millennium had passed it became apparent that the school buildings were no longer fit for purpose and were showing their age. Madras was the only split-site school in Scotland where the pupils were taught in two different sites and teachers travelled between buildings. There was a need for the whole school to be located on one site. Various options were investigated and a number of preferred sites suggested, including refurbishment and expansion of the Kilrymont site, a new building beside the University on the North Haugh and a new building on the sloping site beside the hospital at Pipeland.

A number of pressure groups appeared to promote the different options. The expansion of Kilrymont was decided against as a result of objections by Parent Voice. They went on to promote the Pipeland site. Another group, the New Madras for the 21st Century group promoted the North Haugh site. This group eventually became STEPAL, the St Andrews Environmental Protection Association Ltd. and was led by three retired Madras teachers including former rector Lindsay Matheson. For a number of years there was considerable antipathy between the groups. Fife Council decided on the Pipeland site but legal challenges forced this to be reconsidered. Earlier negotiations between the University and Fife Council regarding an excambion of University grounds for the South Street site had broken down but were later resurrected with a new University principal. The offshoot of this was an agreement for the excambion with ground at Langlands, south of the North Haugh site. Building work began in 2019 and the new school opened to pupils in summer 2021. The Kilrymont site was put up for sale to be developed for housing. The main Kilrymont building was redeveloped as student accommodation, opening in 2024.

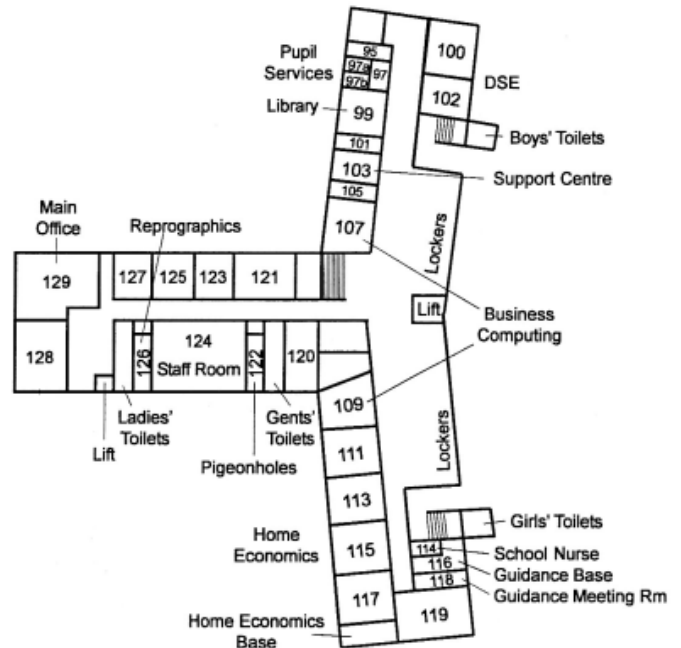

The excambion between the South Street and the Langlands sites resulted in development of the ground around the new Madras College at Langlands, building new houses and apartment blocks. In South Street all the buildings to the south of the original 1833 building were demolished in 2022 including the tower block, assembly hall, gymnasium, swimming pool, boiler house and teaching classrooms. The proposal is for the site to become a new business college for St Andrews University named New College opening in 2027.
